(All seams are 1/4")

1. Assemble the top row of the table runner by stitching a 5" square pink piece to a 5" x 20" blue piece along the 5" side, right sides together, then alternating 5" pink squares and 5" x 20" blue pieces, ending with a 12-1/2" x 5" blue piece. Press all seams to one side.

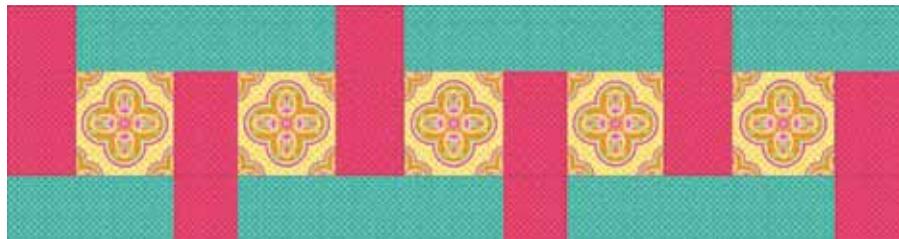

2. Assemble the middle row of the table runner by stitching a 5" x 8" pink piece to a 8" square orange piece along the 8" side, right sides together, then alternating 5" x 8" pink pieces and 8" orange squares, ending with a 5" x 8" pink piece. Press all seams to one side.

3. Assemble the bottom row of the table runner by stitching a 5" x 12-1/2" blue piece to a 5" square pink piece along the 5" side, right sides together, then alternating 5" x 20" blue pieces and 5" pink squares, ending with a 5" pink square. Press all seams to one side.

4. To construct the table runner top, pin and stitch the top row to the middle row, right sides together. Stitch the middle row to the bottom row, right sides together, as shown below, making sure all seams are aligned. Press all seams to one side.

5. To build the backing, trim the selvages off the two backing pieces, then stitch along the 18" sides, right sides together, ending up with a piece roughly 18" x 80". Press the seam to one side. Place the table runner top over the backing, with the seam centered left to right, then trim off the excess backing fabric on either side, leaving 1" of extra fabric on both sides.

6. To quilt, layer a good quality quilt batting in between the top and the backing, making sure the batting extends at least 1" along all sides. Pin well, and quilt as desired. The orange squares are left unquilted. After quilting is finished, trim the edges and square up the top to prepare it for binding.
7. To construct the binding, stitch the four binding strips along the 2-1/2" sides to yield one continuous long strip. Bind the table runner as desired.
